

RECEPTION BY WOMAN'S CLUB TO THE VISITING WOMEN IS BRILLIANT AFFAIR

With characteristic southwestern hospitality, the Women's club of El Paso, representing all the women of the city, played hostess Tuesday afternoon and entertained the visiting women brought here by the Democratic convention, with a reception on the mezzanine balcony of the Hotel Paso del Norte. The balcony was beautifully decorated with quantities of flowers, all grown in El Paso, and given to the club by the city experiment station and the El Paso nursery. The flowers were arranged in graceful tall, gilt vases about the hall, and one table centered with a tall vase, was strewn thick with beautiful, fragrant roses. On another table were the valley fruits, peaches, ripe checked and large, luscious bunches of mission and green grapes, large cantaloupes and other of the fruits which grow to such perfection in the valley. During the afternoon refreshments were served from dainty tables decorated with flowers and flow-ers.

The hotel orchestra played for a part of the time and then the Sixth infantry band serenaded the reception guests from the lobby of the hotel. The affair was a most enjoyable one, and was characterized by a gracious informality that relieved it of any possible suspicion of stiffness.

In the Receiving Line.
Receiving the guests as they arrived were Mesdames D. C. Root, W. R. Brown, Carl Smith, W. L. Foxworth, George Schuman, W. W. Evans, J. P. McKensie, Burt Orndorff and Miss S. H. Hower.

Mrs. R. M. Worsham and Mrs. Josephine Nations Morfit presented the guests to the receiving line.

In the receiving line were the following: Mrs. C. E. Kelly, who wore a white embroidered lingerie gown.

Mrs. Robert Krahnen, who was dressed in black velvet and satin with lace borders.

Mrs. James E. Ferguson, of Temple, who was dressed in a figured silk, in which pale yellow tones predominated.

Mrs. S. J. Fennell wore white satin. Mrs. Claude R. Hudspeeth was dressed in pale blue chiffon of crepe de chine, with shadow lace trimmings.

Mrs. John McKay, of Temple, wore a lingerie gown of white organdy with lavender flowers and pale pink trimmings.

Mrs. P. M. Spann, of Temple, wore a costume of white lace with a pink silk skirt.

Mrs. Emma Kyle Burleson, of Austin, wore a white tulle costume.

Mrs. W. H. Burgess was dressed in lemon satin with an overdress of white and touches of blue velvet.

Mrs. Q. U. Watson, of Houston, wore a white lace embroidered robe with pale blue trimmings.

Mrs. Walter Collins, of Hillsboro, wore a sprigged silk gown with pale green silk skirt.

Mrs. L. T. Williams wore a peach blow taffeta with lace trimmings.

Mrs. W. O. Murry wore a white embroidered lingerie gown.

Mrs. W. W. Turner wore a taffeta gown of a pale shade of pink.

Mrs. O. H. Baum, assisted by Mrs. S. H. Worrell and Mrs. W. L. Foxworth, assisted by Mrs. E. M. Whitaker, Mesdames Jane Burgess and Dorcas Ferguson, served fruit sherbet and dainty wafers.

Mrs. S. H. Sutherland and Mrs. H. T. Bowie looked after the registration of the guests and distributed the souvenirs, which were the chamber of commerce booklets of El Paso.

Marks New Era.
The grace with which the Women's club carried out the plans of hospitality toward the women visiting the city marks a new era in civic affairs; it accentuates the breadth of woman's view and the depth of her civic pride. The women of the club are of all political beliefs and of the representative men of the city; but beyond and above all party differences they are women. Their chief interest in life being the welfare of women and children, their outside working interest must be the welfare of the city and state which houses and governs them. Therefore when the Women's club was asked to undertake the responsibility of entertaining the visiting women during convention week, it thought only of its duty to the city, its hospitality toward other women of other clubs of the state, and Republican, Democrat, Progressive and Stand-patter alike, they worked as an organization to further the pleasure of the city's visitors simply because they were guests of our home city, for which the Women's club has always heretofore acted as hostess in cooperation with the chamber of commerce as host.

DOG POISONER AT WORK.
Dogs are being poisoned in Grand View and the residents of that residential view are considerably aroused as a result. M. C. McCurdy Tuesday lost a fine Airedale and a Boston bull terrier by poison, while Jay E. Dutcher lost a valuable English bulldog. Other dogs also were poisoned.

Convention Visitors.
We want you to visit El Paso's two most metropolitan Drug Stores—one in the Mills building, the other in the Roberts-Banner building. In addition to supplying your immediate needs, we are also at your service with Free Telephone and any local information you desire. We also suggest that you do not leave El Paso without securing a bottle of White's Guaranteed Corn Cure. You certainly can't find anywhere else your home town that approaches this.
